Prevention and detection of Crime and Fraud

We may use the information we hold about you to detect and prevent crime or fraud. We may also share this information with other bodies that inspect and manage public funds.

We will not routinely disclose any information about you without your express permission. However, there are circumstances where we must or can share information about you owing to a legal/statutory obligation.

Individual rights

Data Protection laws gives individuals rights in respect of the personal information that we hold about you. These are:

1. To be informed why, where and how we use your information.
2. To ask for access to your information.

3. To ask for your information to be corrected if it is inaccurate or incomplete.
4. To ask for your information to be deleted or removed where there is no need for us to continue processing it.
5. To ask us to restrict the use of your information.
6. To ask us to copy or transfer your information from one IT system to another in a safe and secure way, without impacting the quality of the information.
7. To object to how your information is used.
8. To challenge any decisions made without human intervention (automated decision making)

How do we keep your information safe and maintain confidentiality?

Under the General Data Protection Regulation/Data Protection Act 2018, strict principles govern our use of information and our duty to ensure it is kept safe and secure. Your information may be stored with-in electronic or paper records, or a combination of both. All our records are restricted so that only those individuals who have a need to know the information can get access. This might be through the use of technology or other environmental safeguards.

Everyone working for the NHS is subject to the Common Law Duty of Confidentiality. This means that any information that you provide to us in confidence will only be used in connection with the purpose for which it was provided, unless we have specific consent from you or there are other special circumstances covered by law.

Under the NHS Confidentiality Code of Conduct, all of our staff are required to protect information, inform you of how your information will be used, and allow you to decide if and how your information can be shared.

How long do we retain your records?

All our records are destroyed in accordance with the IGA Records Management Code of Practice for Health and Social Care 2016, which sets out the appropriate length of time each type of NHS record is retained. We do not keep your records for longer than necessary.

All records are appropriately reviewed once their retention period has been met, and the Trust will decide whether the record still requires retention or should be confidentially destroyed. All decisions and destructions will be documented.

How can I access information about me?

Under the Data Protection Act 2018 (GDPR May 2018) a person may request access to information (with some exemptions) that is held about them by an organisation. Please contact Employee Services (PoD) further details of how to access information which the Trust holds on you.

Should you have any further queries or should you wish to lodge a complaint on the uses of your information, please speak to the Trusts Data Protection Officer – Roy Underwood: dbth.dpo@nhs.net
