

If coronavirus infection occurs before you have surgery or during your recovery period following surgery, this could make your recovery more difficult, or increase your risk of serious illness or death.

To reduce the risk patients undergoing surgery will be tested for Covid-19 - 3 days before surgery and be advised to self-isolate before and following surgery.

Why is this important?

There are several factors that in isolation or combined increase a patient's risk of developing Covid-19 and then it having a significant impact on their health, these can include amongst others:

Elderly patients, patients from a Black, Asian and Minority Ethnic group (BAME). Patients, who have undergone organ transplant, having treatment for cancer, are immunosuppressed or have conditions such as high blood pressure, obesity or diabetes.

For more comprehensive information please access NHS information via: https://www.nhs.uk/conditions/coronavirus-covid-19/people-at-higherrisk/whos-at-higher-risk-from-coronavirus/. The lists may not include everyone who's at higher risk from coronavirus and may change as we learn more about the virus. Your risk may also relate to the type of surgery you are undergoing and any post-surgery treatment being planned.

Following your surgery, you will be advised to self-isolate for a period of time and this will depend on the surgery undertaken and your risk factors relating to Covid-19. This could vary from 3 days to 14 days - depending on your risk factors.

Please read the following tips and advice to assist you in self-isolating, including several contact numbers for support services in the community.

Whilst self-isolating you need to stay at home

- Do not go to work, school, or public areas and do not use public transport or taxis unless attending a health related appointment.
- If possible, have a family member or friend pick up your food supplies, medicines or other essentials and bring them to you.
- If you need help buying groceries, other shopping or medication, there are many community support services in place.
- Alternatively, you could order your shopping online and your medication by phone. Contact your pharmacy to see what options they provide.
- Delivery drivers should not come into your property, so make sure you ask them to leave the items outside for collection.

Please go to the contacts section in this booklet for contact numbers and websites that can advise and assist with your needs.

Living with other people

- Use a separate bathroom from the rest of the household, if available.
- If you have to share facilities, regular cleaning will be required.
- Use separate towels from other household members, both for drying yourself after bathing or showering and for hand hygiene purposes.
- You should avoid using shared spaces, such as kitchens, whilst others are present.
- Try and eat your meals away from other household members.
- It is preferable to use a dishwasher to clean your crockery and cutlery. Alternatively, wash them by hand using washing up liquid and warm water and dry them thoroughly, using a separate tea towel.
- Everyone within your household should regularly wash their hands with soap and water for at least 20 seconds and avoid touching their face. Regularly clean frequently touched surfaces within the home.
- You can use your usual household detergents for cleaning your home. Remember, some areas are touched more often than others, for example door handles, handrails, remote controls and table tops.

We understand that it will be difficult for some people to separate themselves from others within their home. Try to do your very best to follow this guidance.

Visits from essential carers

Any essential carers or visitors who support you with your everyday needs can continue to visit unless they have any of the symptoms of COVID-19. They should follow good hygiene practise:

- They must wash their hands with soap and water for at least 20 seconds on arrival to your house and often whilst they are there (or use hand sanitiser).
- They should wear a face covering and keep two meters away where close or personal contact is not required and where this is possible.

Dealing with self-isolation

Here are some things you can do to help make self-isolation easier.

- Plan ahead and think about what you will need in order to stay at home for the full duration of your recovery.
- Use any support you might have through friends, family and other networks during this time. Try to stay in touch with those around you over the phone, by post or online. This will support your mental health.
- Only do jobs around the house that you feel fit enough to do whilst recovering from your procedure. Any other tasks that are essential but you are not able to do, consider asking a family member or close friend to do these tasks for you.
- Ensure to use household disinfectants and detergents. These will kill any germs and viruses within your home.
- Have a few activities prepared, such as games or puzzles or simple crafts. Listen to the radio, read or watch television.
- Plan a calendar or diary of things that need to be done, for example any district nurse or therapy staff home visits.

Once you are home from your surgery

Following discharge, the Surgery flow team may contact you to offer you any additional support and discuss with you any problems you may be experiencing.

Useful contacts

NHS Volunteer Responders

If you, or someone you know, needs help or if you are a carer in need of support, our NHS Volunteer Responders are available. Call 0808 196 3646 between 8am to 8pm to register and arrange for help.

They provide support to the following groups:

- People who want to continue to stay at home or who need to avoid busier public spaces, such as supermarkets
- People with caring responsibilities
- People who are self-isolating because they've been diagnosed with COVID-19 or have symptoms

- People who've been instructed to self-isolate by the 'Test and Trace' service, because they've been near someone infected.
- People who are self-isolating ahead of planned hospital care.
- Frontline health and care workers.
